

The Goodland Republic.

ESTABLISHED 1886.

GOODLAND, KANSAS, FRIDAY, AUGUST 16, 1901.

NO. 52.

A 20th CENTURY LOVE LETTER

Extracts From It Might Prove Invaluable to Lovers Not Versed in Letter Writing.

The following letter, which, it is claimed, was picked up on the streets of Goodland, was handed The Republic for publication. It is evidently a sample of a love letter of the century style and can perhaps be used to advantage by some of the young people who are not well versed in the art of love letter writing:

"My Dear Mr. B.—: Every time I think of you, my heart jumps up and down like a churn-dasher; sensations of exquisite joy caper over it like young goats on a stable roof. As a gossamer swimmeth with delight in a mud puddle, so swim I in a sea of glory. Visions of ecstatic rapture, thicker than the hairs of a blacking brush, visit me in my slumbers, and are borne to me on invisible wings. Your image stands before me, and I reach out to grasp it like a pointer snapping at a blue bottle fly. When I ponder upon your angelic perfections, I am bewildered, and my brain whirls around like a bumble bee under a glass tumbler, and I lift up mine ears to hear the silvery accents of your dear voice. Day and night you are in my thoughts. When the jaybirds pipe their tuneless lay in the rose bush by the back door steps; when the striking of the old town clock heralds the coming morn; when the awakening pig riseth from his bed and grunts and goeth forth to seek his morning refreshments, I think of thee, and like a piece of gum elastic, my heart seems stretched clear across my bosom. Your eyes are glorious to behold, and in their liquid depths I see legions of little cupids, bathing like a cohort of ants in an old army cracker. Your nose is from a chunk of Parian marble, and your mouth is puckered with sweetness; your laugh lingers in my ears like the bleat of a stray lamb on a bleak hillside, and the dimples in your cheeks are like hollows in cakes of home-made sugar. I am dying to fly to thy presence, and pour out the burning eloquence of my love as a thrifty house-keeper pours out hot coffee. Away from you, I am as melancholy as a sick rat. Sometimes I can hear the June bugs of despondency buzzing in my ears, and feel the cold lizards of despair crawling down my back. My soul is pierced with doubts, as an old cheese is bored with skippers; as a mean pup hankers after new milk, so I long for thee. You are fairer than a speckled pullet—sweeter than a Yankee doughnut fried in sorghum molasses.

"If these few remarks shall enable you to see the inside of my soul, and me to win your affections, I shall be as happy as a stage horse in a green pasture. If you cannot reciprocate my thrilling passion, I will pine away like a poisoned beg bug, and in the coming years when the shadows grow from the hills, and the philosophical frog sings his cheerful evening hymn, you, happy in another's love, can come and drop a tear, and—catch cold on the last resting place of Yours affectionately,—"C."

Kansas in Oklahoma.
Kansas people worry a great deal because their state does not grow in population, and wonder what the reason is. It is easy to find the reason, relates the Kansas City Times. Every person who makes a pilgrimage to Oklahoma knows why Kansas shows up poorly in the census reports. Three times Kansas contributed of her population to settle the unoccupied lands of Oklahoma. There was the original opening of Oklahoma. Investigation revealed the fact that half the claim holders were Kansans. Then came the Cherokee strip opening, and men from Kansas made a majority of the population of the new country. Now comes the opening of the Kiowa, Comanche, Wichita and Caddo reservations, which draws heavily for people from the Sunflower state.

"The loss to Kansas is Oklahoma's gain, not only in population, but in the character of citizenship. It is said that 80 per cent of the men who have settled in Oklahoma since the first opening were under 30 years of age when they made the move. Young men with all the requirements of life except money have seen an opportunity to secure homes in a new country and left Kansas for that purpose. They are the men who have made Oklahoma and the Cherokee strip to blossom as the rose, and builded fine cities. They are the men who will make a garden spot of the Comanche country.

When there are no more lands to "open," then the youth of Kansas will be compelled to remain at home and fight for a way out among their elders. Then Kansas will grow and develop in population, as it has done in agricultural, stock raising, manufacturing and mining.

C. W. SMITH HAS A CINCH.

Will Be Reappointed District Judge by Gov. Stanley—Has the Endorsement of All Lawyers in the District.

Topeka, Kan., Aug. 10.—Gov. Stanley has promised to reappoint Charles W. Smith, of Stockton, to be judge of the Thirty-fourth judicial district. Smith had a cinch. All the lawyers in the district, regardless of politics, endorsed him. Smith was appointed judge by Gov. Humphrey in 1898, and has been elected at every judicial election since, although the fusionists have a majority of votes in the district. Rocks, Graham, Sheridan, Thomas and Sherman counties compose the district.

TOLD IN A LINE.

The late Baron Faber, the pencil manufacturer, once said of the article which had made him rich: "It has done more execution since it came into use than the sword, while who can enumerate the libels it has written!"

The mere act of living is getting more complicated every year. Even bathing has become dangerous, for unless the bather keeps his mouth tightly closed and wiper his lips with a sterilized towel he is liable to contract typhoid fever. But who can go swimming and keep his mouth tightly closed while in the water?

Someone has discovered that sunstroke is also the work of a microbe of peculiar shape and kind. It only remains now to find the germ which causes people to freeze to death in winter time. The germ which invades the physical anatomy that has been struck by lightning and the bacillus that plays havoc with persons who are run over by railway trains can be hunted up and identified later.

According to the report of the interstate commerce commission for the year ended June 30 one passenger was killed for every 2,316,648 carried and one injured for every 139,740 carried, while one trainman was killed for every 137 employed and one injured for every 11 employed. Passengers are evidently better cared for, but much remains to be done to protect employees properly.

Appropos of the effort now being made by the mother of Emmett Dalton to secure his release from the Kansas prison, where he is serving a life sentence for participation in the famous raid at Coffeyville, it can truthfully be said that there are few bands of outlaws in or out of prison than Emmett Dalton. Over six feet tall and weighing 240 pounds, his physique is the envy of visitors to the state prison tailor shop, where he is employed.

The Atchison Globe's crusade against him is famous throughout the country. The paper never goes to press without an anti-kin paragraph. Ed Howe gets credit for these paragraphs, but he doesn't write them. They are the hobby of Miss Francis L. Garside, who quit teaching school 18 years ago to become a reporter on the Globe. She is one of the brightest newspaper women in the west and has done much toward building up the Globe's reputation. She hasn't enough relatives to give her any trouble, and she handles the subject entirely from the experience of her kin-burdened friends.—Kansas City Times.

Topeka Notes in Kansas City Times: When the state board of railroad commissioners received the proof of the new railroad map, Jim Pike discovered that the lines representing the various railroads were all wide except that of the Rock Island, which was very narrow. Now the Rock Island is Mr. Pike's favorite railroad so he made a great roar about it and the board ordered the map publishing company to widen the Rock Island line. The 10,000 maps ordered came the other day, but the error had not been corrected. The Rock Island still has the worst of it, so far as the width of the lines is concerned. Pike wants to hold up the map company's pay.

Reduced the Levy Six Mills.

The mayor and council have taken out the levy of six mills made at their meeting last week for interest on outstanding warrants. As it stood it made the levy in Goodland 92 mills as against 75 1/4 for last year, and when the council saw that taxes would be so extremely high they decided to cut out the six mills for interest on outstanding warrants, which will leave the levy in the city at 86 mills, certainly high enough. From a legal standpoint the six mills would have been unlawfully levied, for the statutes provide that a tax cannot be assessed for interest on warrants when there are no outstanding warrants when the levy is made. All Goodland city warrants are paid upon presentation, hence the inability to lawfully make the levy.

ORDINANCE NO. 121.

A N ordinance levying taxes upon all taxable property in the city of Goodland, Kansas, for the fiscal year commencing on the first day of April, 1901, and ending on the 30th day of April, 1902, and creating a sinking fund for the redemption of city bonds outstanding, a general fund, accruing interest on city bonds.

J. S. BARNES, Mayor.
R. A. KENT, City Clerk.

DEATH FROM PARALYSIS.

John Sullivan, an Old and Respected Citizen, Passes Away Last Friday Morning.

John Sullivan, 77 years of age, died at his home four miles southwest of Goodland Friday morning, August 9, at 9:20 o'clock from paralysis. Mr. Sullivan suffered a stroke of paralysis more than a month ago, and has been confined to his home since and continued to grow weaker. He spent a restless night Thursday and the family were summoned to the home Friday morning as the end was known to be near. His wife and youngest daughter, Mrs. Carter, of Omaha, were the only ones present when death came.

Mr. Sullivan was born August 10, 1824, in County of Cork, Ireland. He was married to Mary Murphy at Clinton, Ia., in 1851, and came to Sherman county in 1885. His wife and 11 children survive him.

The funeral services were held from the home Sunday at ten o'clock and interment made in the Catholic cemetery. It being impossible for Father Laydecker to come the services were conducted by Mrs. W. J. Breenahan.

Live Stock Farming.
Some men can make a success with cattle who do not seem to be suited for getting the best results from growing and fattening hogs.

One man will make good mutton and wool and get good average prices while another will make a miserable failure of handling sheep—in fact some men dislike the woolly tribe so much that they cannot see a sheep without hating it.

The man who loves horses is very apt to know, or easily learn, how to successfully handle them.

Still other men prefer to raise and sell grain and think they cannot succeed with any kind of live stock except an old family cow or a few pigs to eat the kitchen swill.

It is preeminently an age of specialization, an age when men are more and more confining their work to what they do best.

Very naturally a man does not love what he cannot do well.

It often happens that through the error of making a bad start and acting upon wrong advice a man who, with reasonable care, could make a success will do the opposite. In such cases it is not unusual for one to lay the blame where it does not belong and quit the line of business in disgust. To be sure a man who is so unreasonable and short sighted as to draw conclusions from single instances is apt to make a failure at anything, but there is always some one thing which even the most unreasoning man will find that he can do best.

There are "ranch kings" and "bousanza wheat farmers." There are small farmers who do not pretend to raise anything but grain, and others who raise grain only to feed it on the place and buy thousands of bushels from neighbors.

As a general rule the men who are engaged in live stock farming of some kind are the men who can afford to hire help in the house as well as in the fields; men who can keep good rigs, have good houses, plenty of books, and who are able to give the children a fair education.

Farmers who refuse to raise any kind of live stock don't always have the biggest mortgages to raise but when they do have them they are sorely pressed.

The men who go into live stock carefully and intelligently, using brains and profiting by the advice and experience of men who do succeed, sometimes have big mortgages to lift, but they are the ones who can lift them, and when lifted they are in shape to go forward and do larger and better business.

The man who feeds his hay and grain and roots has the advantage of having products to market that are always in demand for cash no matter how times may be and his lands year by year grow stronger and more fertile.

The average exclusive grain farmer is growing relatively poorer and the average stock farmer is growing more prosperous.

This is in accordance with the views of such men as Prof. W. A. Henry, of Wisconsin, Prof. Egbert Davenport, of Illinois, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson and many others.

Live stock farming pays best.—Live Stock World.

Another Big Rain.
The rain that was so badly needed during July is now being supplied in abundant quantity. Wednesday evening the heaviest rain of the year began falling about 7:30 o'clock and continued throughout the greater portion of the night. The streets of Goodland had more the appearance of small lakes than business thoroughfares yesterday morning. From the extremely hot days of last month the weather has turned to one of early fall, the nights being almost uncomfortably cool while the days are far from hot. These late rains will make some late corn and forage crops, and have stimulated the falling cattle market.

Schell drove out south of the railroad track and when the dog saw the buggy he started toward it, but before he got very close the marshal shot him with a Winchester.
